This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

HAMBLETON FAMILY

DESCENDANTS OF

JAMES HAMBLETON

OF BUCKS COUNTY, PENNSYLVANIA, WHO DIED IN 1751.

WITH MENTION OF OTHER HAMBLETONS, IN ENGLAND AND AMERICA.

PUBLISHED FOR THE AUTHOR.
1887.

"He who cares nothing about his ancestors will rarely achieve any thing worthy of being remembered by his descendants."

"No virtuously disposed mind can look back upon a long line of truly venerable ancestors without feeling his motive to a virtuous life strengthened. He can scarcely help feeling that it is not for him to be the first to bring disgrace upon his lineage. It will, moreover, lead him to reflect that his posterity also will be looking back and comparing his life with that of his progenitors."—Anon.

INTRODUCTION.

DURING a visit to Chester County, Pa., in the summer of 1884, the writer made copies of some family records and obtained a little information relating to his ancestors and early relatives in the Hambleton line; and as interest in the subject increased, he opened correspondence with members of different branches of the family, as their names and addresses were gradually ascertained, with the hope of at least tracing out the immigrating ancestor and finding out whence he came. This work was commenced for the writer's own satisfaction, but others expressed such an interest in the matter that it was soon determined to prepare for publication, in form of a family record, such information as might be collected, and to trace out the different branches of the family as far as practicable.

With the effort and research thus far made, the earliest known ancestor found is James Hambleton, of Solebury, Bucks County, Pa., a Quaker, and a member of Buckingham Monthly Meeting in 1720, as shown by the records of that meeting. He died in 1751, leaving a large farm and a family of children, which are mentioned in his will. From whence he came is yet a matter of tradition and inference. Most of his descendants in the male lines, including the children of the women who were born Hambletons, have been traced out and recorded, and whatever knowledge they possessed relating to the earlier generations of the family earnestly solicited. The records of wills and deeds in Bucks County and Philadelphia, have been carefully examined, also the records of Buckingham Monthly Meeting, and numerous family records. To pursue this research to the fullest extent will require considerable time and patient labor, and will be more likely to be fruitful of desired results, if different members of the family, who may be interested, will unite in their efforts, and each examine such works and records likely to throw light on the question, as he may have access to.

It has therefore been thought best, rather than delay for an indefinite time for further research, to publish at once the information thus far obtained, in its present shape, so that those interested can have the benefit of it, and should further research result in such additional information as would warrant it, a supplemental sheet containing it will be printed and sent to those having a copy of this book.

The amount of labor required to collect and arrange the material for this record will hardly be appreciated by one not having experience in the same line. Aside from the perusal of numerous geneological works, local histories, biographies and journals, that might throw light on the subject, and the personal examination of records, hundreds of letters have been written, and the material facts in the answers extracted and systematically arranged for publication. Frequently several letters would have to be written to the same person, in order to extract the desired information from some who took little interest in the subject. Others, not fully understanding the purpose of the inquiries, would at once conclude that some property or some large estate coming to the Hambleton family was involved, and would write to know its location, value, etc.

As to the place or country from whence our first

American ancestor came, the traditions of the family are by no means agreed. Among the children of Grandfather John, in Chester County, forty or fifty years ago, it was generally understood and said that the family was of Scotch origin, and among the descendants of his brother William, who early settled in Ohio, the tradition has uniformly been the same. William's son Thomas, still living, writes that his father was a man of some temper, and sometimes remarked after being excited, that his "Scotch blood had got up." But he cannot tell how near he was to the Scotch. Another writes "the family came from Scotland, but which ones, or when, I do not know." A granddaughter of the same William writes that she has heard her father (Charles) "speak of our ancestors as coming from Scotland, and that there was real estate in the city of Philadelphia that belonged rightly to their descendants, which if proven would make quite a fortune for them."

Among the descendants of Stephen's scn James, and a few others, the tradition is that the family is of Welsh descent. One writes that she "used to hear it said that Great Grandfather Stephen came from Wales," and another, who understands that the family was Welsh, says that a native of South Wales told him recently that there were still people there of our name.

A descendant of Aaron writes that "the tradition among his ancestors was that the Hambletons were of Welsh and Irish extraction." And a great-granddaughter of Stephen's brother William, still living in Bucks County, relates that she has always been told by her parents and grandparents that they were Scotch-Irish; that William and Stephen Hambleton came from Ireland to Solebury, and purchased a large tract of land, about 800 acres, and divided it between them, and lived on it; that the name was Ham*il*ton and not Ham*ble*ton, but William's second wife changed the il to ble, and her children took that name, and it was then taken up by Stephen's family. She had never heard of James Hambleton, the father of William and Stephen, though she still lives on a part of the original Hambleton farm, is very bright and intelligent, and possesses much knowledge of earlier generations of the family.

Now, as will appear by the record, William and Stephen were without doubt both born in Bucks County; their father James had before them owned the farms on which they lived, and the name is uniformly spelled with ble, in the early Monthly Meeting records, and also in the last wills of James, William and Stephen, and in the deeds and will of William's eldest son, the il being first generally adopted by William's younger sons, whose descendants still use that spelling.

This goes further to show how very unreliable tradition is where definite information is desired concerning family history and pedigree.

The inferences to be drawn from well-known facts would seem to be different from the traditions in regard to the origin of the family.

As will be hereafter shown, HAMBLETON is a very old English name, of Anglo Saxon origin, probably much older than the Scotch and the Scotch-Irish form, with the il. As far as the facts have been ascertained, the spelling of the name with ble is very rare in Scotland and Ireland, while it is the form most always used in England in former times. Then again we first find James settled in a neighborhood made up mostly of English immigrants; his friends and associates, judging from the names, were mostly English; all his children, with possibly one exception, intermarried with persons of genuine English names; three of them, with certainty, married into families that came directly from England to Bucks County, and remembering the clannishness as to nationalities among immigrants, and the disposition to settle, associate and intermarry with those of their own nation, it would seem much more probable that James or his father came from England than that they were either Scotch, Irish, or Welsh.

As to family traits and peculiarities, some marked ones appeared through several generations. The men generally were above the average in height, large-chested, muscular, enduring, and inclining to be spare and thin after middle life, with long sharp faces and prominent noses. They had heads of good size, prominent in the lower part of the forehead and very high in the crown. The most marked mental characteristics were great firmness of character, persistency, high moral purpose, strong sense of duty, integrity, thrift, and practical common-sense. The family has furnished no brilliant geniuses, and no persons of large wealth or great renown. For several generations they were mostly Quakers and well-to-do farmers. They were brought up in the simple habits, moderate tastes, and honest purposes of an intelligent rural community, and have belonged to the solid middle classes of society, whose firmest belief was in the sacredness of truth, and the worthiness of moral virtue.

In their Quakerism they seem to have inclined to the liberal, progressive side, and when the society divided, about 1827, in those sections and neighborhoods that offered an opportunity of choice, they nearly all went with the Hicksites, who seem to have adopted the Unitarian view of Christ, the Universalist doctrine of future punishment, the genuine Quaker spirit of practical morality, and their own ideas of divine revelation. As those of later generations of the family have dropped out of Friends' Meeting, a few have joined other churches, but much the larger number have inclined to Rationalism, and slid into doubt and disbelief concerning the common orthodox dogmas of religion.

They have expended their moral enthusiasm in advocating and advancing the various moral reforms of their day, rather than in devotion to the doctrinal phases of religion. Those of the generation preceding the late war were especially firm and ardent workers in the anti-slavery movement, and active agents on the "Underground Railroad," assisting fugitive slaves in large numbers, and though bred in the peace principles of Quakerism, which opposed all war and fighting, a goodly number of their sons went into the army, mainly from their interest in the emancipation of the slaves.

The following remarks are extracts from letters of several elderly Friends, who have had a wide acquaintance with the family:

"The early generations of Friends affected to despise all worldly rank and honors, yet under all some of them did feel pride of family; and the Hambletons I have known were not wanting in that feeling, though affecting to be very democratic. But their aspirations and ambitions were mostly for godliness, and always for refinement of mind and manners, and the cultivation of the noblest instincts of human nature."

"Though not many of the family have achieved great honors, the most of them have had reputations for morality, integrity and uprightness. For several generations they have planted themselves upon the rock of moral principle and reform."

"They have been a highly respectable family. Whilst none have become world-widely known, but few have turned out bad."

"Of the numerous tribe, I never knew one to be convicted of a penal crime, to be a county pauper, or to be accused of being very rich. They have been moral and temperate, and generally lived to a fair old age. Some years ago five generations were got together in Erie County, New York."

"While none have risen to great wealth or eminence, but few have descended to extreme poverty, and fewer still to vice and crime. They have nearly all been self supporting, and fairly well off in the last half of life. They have always sustained a high character for uprightness, honesty and fair dealing."

While the descendants of the first William nearly all remained in Bucks County and vicinity, and are not very numerous at the present day, Stephen's children, with the exception of one daughter, all left their native county and went westward for newer lands and settlements. They and their descendants have faithfully fulfilled the scriptural injunction, "Be fruitful and multiply, and replenish the earth and subdue it," for they are to-day a numerous tribe, and are scattered over every northern State and Territory west of New England, besides eight Southern States and Canada. They still incline to settle on the frontiers of civilization, to subdue the wilderness, and grow up with the new country, and like their forefathers seek farms and lands for their principal investments. And although so many of them have been pioneers, surrounded by the poor moral atmosphere of frontier life, and like other settlers in the wilderness, deprived of many opportunities for education and culture, but few of them have degenerated to illiteracy or indifference to moral and intellectual improvement.

THE NAME IN ENGLAND.

Hambleton or Hambledon, the older form of the name, according to most writers on names, is without doubt of Anglo Saxon origin, and is a very old, though not a very common English name of both places and families.

> "In Ford, in Ham, in Ley, in Ton,
> The most of English surnames run."

Dixon, in "SURNAMES," says that the English terminations "ham," "ley," and "ton," are rendered by home, field and town. The significance of the Anglo Saxon word "ham" is "home, house, dwelling, village, farm."

"DON is down or hill, as SHELDON, shell hill; SHELTON, shell town."

Taylor, in "WORDS AND PLACES," p. 78, says: "The suffix ton constitutes a sort of test word, by which we are able to discriminate the Anglo Saxon settlements." "It is the most common termination of English local names."

March, in "EAST LANCASHIRE NOMENCLATURE," says: "Of the words which the Saxons borrowed from the Celts, two of the most important are dun and dene. Dun is down, a hill, but sometimes designates a "hill-fortress."

"Hameldon and Hambledon Hill is the hill or fortress of Hamall."

In the south part of Hants or Hampshire; a section which was conquered and permanently settled by the Saxon invaders, under Cerdic, about the year 495, is the river Hamble, emptying into Southampton waters; and at its mouth is the very old port or town of Hamble, mentioned in a writ issued by King Edward I., about the year 1300. Some 20 miles inland, and eastward from this port, in the higher and more hilly country, is the town of Hambledon (Hamble hill). In this same county was the ancient Hundred of Hambledune, (Hamble down, or hill), mentioned in Domesday Book, compiled in 1086. Parishes of Hamble and of Hambledon are also found in the same county. Names of other places in England are: Hambledon—parishes in Bucks and Surrey; Hambleton—towns in Yorkshire and Lancashire, and a parish in Rutland; also, Hambleton Hills, in Yorkshire. This is the usual spelling of the name of these hills, though formerly it was sometimes given Hambledon, and in one edition of the "ENCYCLOPEDIA BRITANNICA" it is Hamilton.

Mr. S. H. Needles, in his Book on the Maryland Family of Hambletons, quotes a verse from an old ballad called "Hambledown Hill," in which was celebrated the famous battle of these hills, wherein the Scots were defeated in 1402:

> "At last they hied with ilk his band,
> To Brae of Humbledun,
> Where Douglas and his army lay,
> Wi' knights of great renown."

Mr. Needles also mentions that in the records of the old church of Pool, England, situated a little to the west of Hants, are found these names:

James Hambleton, son of James and Sarah Hambleton, baptised July 16, 1669.

Leonard Hambleton, son of James and Sarah Hambleton, baptised Oct. 29, 1671.

Among the names of places in England none of that of Hamilton have been found, except one or two that have been changed in later times from the former spelling of the name. No place of the name of Hambleton has been found in Scotland or Ireland, while those of the name of Hamilton are found in both, and families of the latter name are very common there.

Edmunds, in "NAMES AND PLACES," says that Hamilton, a surname, is

"From Hambledon, the seat of Sir Gilbert de Hambledon, the founder of the Scotch Ducal family of Hamilton, in the 13th century."

In "PATRONYMICA BRITANNICA," is mentioned:

"HAMBLEDON—Parishes, etc., in Rutland, Lancaster, Buckingham and York."

"HAMILTON—A corruption of Hambledon, a manor in Buckinghamshire."

"William de Hambledon, a younger son of Robert de Beaumont, third Earl of Leicester, is said to have gone, about the year 1215, into Scotland, where he was well received by Alexander II. From him sprung all the noble and other Scottish lines of Hamiltons.

"A foolish tradition places the emigration of Hambledon from England to Scotland a century later, in the time of Edward II, and connects it with his having taken part with the murderers of that king's favorite, Spencer. Compelled by the monarch's resentment to leave England, and being closely pursued into the forest, Hambledon and his squire changed clothes with a couple of woodmen, whom they accidentally met, and the better to sustain their assumed character, seized a saw and began to cut down a tree; while engaged in this act, their pursuers passed by, and De Hambledon, finding his attendant's gaze directed towards them, hastily cried out 'through,' and thus diverted him from the imprudence of revealing his features to their view. From this circumstance continues the legend, the Hamiltons borrowed their crest, 'an oak tree penetrated transversely, in the main stem, by a frame saw,' and their motto, 'through.'

"The Hamiltons are a migratory race, and are to be found in almost every region of the world."

The gradual changes in sound and spelling which have taken place in many English names, have always been in the direction of easier pronunciation and spelling. As examples, Leicester, Cockburn, Campbell, Norwich, are now pronounced, Lester, Coburn, Camel, Norich, and frequently spelled in the latter manner; and so the change from Hambledon to Hambleton, and from both to Hamelton and Hamilton, is a natural one, and has taken place not only in England and Scotland, but in some cases in America, as will appear hereafter in the record.

George Fox, in his journal, (star, page 269), after speaking of going over into Scotland, in the year 1657, and visiting Dumphreey, Douglass and Heads,

"Where we had a blessed meeting, in the name of Jesus, and felt Him in the midst."

Further says:

"Leaving Heads, we went to Badcow, and had a meeting there, to which abundance of people came, and many were convinced, amongst whom was one that was called a Lady, convinced. From thence we passed towards the Highlands to Wm. Osborn's house. Afterwards we came back to Heads, Badcow and Garshare, where the said Lady Margaret Hambleton was convinced, who afterwards went to warn O. Cromwell and Charles Fleetwood of the day of the Lord that was coming upon them."

In "BURKE'S LANDED GENTRY," is mentioned:

"John Constance, an eminent merchant, and alderman of Norwich,"

* * * "purchased the Weston estates in 1726. He married Sarah, daughter and co-heiress of JOHN HAMBLETON, Esq., of Banham, in Norfolk."

In "CHAMBER'S INDEX TO NEXT OF KIN," by Edward Preston, 4th Edition, London, 1878, among those who have been advertised during the last 150 years, as persons wanted in England to inherit property, and for other legal and family affairs, are found the following.

CREST.

From "CRESTS OF GREAT BRITAIN," by Fairbairn.

HAMBLETON, Eng. A bundle of quills,—p. p. r. Pl. 86. Crest 7.

From various works on horses and the turf, it is learned that during the reign of Queen Anne, who was a devotee to horse racing, races were established at several places in Yorkshire, and "continued to be the regular sport at York and Hambleton," and in 1727 only a dozen royal plates were run for in England, one of which was at "Black Hambleton, in Yorkshire." From a horse called "Darley's Arabian," imported about 1700, from Turkey or Arabia, by a Mr. Darley, of Yorkshire, were descended all of the best English race horses, many of the most celebrated of which, for over a century, have been named Hambletonians, and some of them have been expressly mentioned as being Yorkshire horses. Whether the name when first applied to the horses was derived from the town, the hills, or some person by the name of Hambleton, has not been ascertained. From "Messenger," a celebrated horse of the same stock, imported from England to Philadelphia in 1788, are descended all of the different lines and families of Hambletonian horses in America; and thus the name as applied to horses was brought to the United States from England.

OTHER HAMBLETONS IN AMERICA.

In the "NEW ENGLAND GENEOLOGICAL REGISTER," vols. 9, 10, 11, 14, 15, and 26, taken from "EARLY RECORDS OF BOSTON," are mentioned:

"William Hambleton was marryed to Mary Richardson 7:6: 1654, by Richd. Bellingham, Govr."

"HAMBLETON—GUSTAVUS, sonne of William and Mary, borne 7 Augt. 1654."

"ELIZABETH, dau. of William and Mary, borne 13 Dec., 1655."

"SARAH, dau. of William and Mary, borne 7 Aprill, 1657."

"Abraham, ye sonne of William Hambleton, and Mary his wife, borne 23th December, 1661."

"In Boston. July 28, 1702, Isaac Hambleton was fined 20s. "for traveling on the Lord's day from Dedham to this town, in contempt of law."

"Isaac Everett m. Elizabeth Hambleton, May 21, 1728."

In same, vols. 6, 7 and 9, taken from "EARLY RECORDS OF NEW HAMPSHIRE," mention is made of

"Solomon, son of David Hambleton, b. 10 Aug., 1666.
Jonathan, son of David Hambleton, b. 20 Dec., 1672.
Daniel Hambleton was taxed at Cochecho in 1667.
Daniel was dead in 1710—had sons David and Gabriel.
Gabriel had a grant in 1701. (Dover items.)"

In "GENEOLOGIES AND ESTATES OF CHARLESTON, MASS.," is mentioned:

"John Hambleton, in 1658, 'had four acres of woods and three commons.'

In the assessment of New York City, 1676, is found the name of Robert Hambleton.

The most extensive family of Hambletons in this country is probably that of Maryland, an account of which was prepared and published in 1876 by Mr. S. H. Needles, of Philadelphia, a descendant of the family. The first ancestor of this family definitely known, was William Hambleton, of St. Michael's River, Talbot County, Md., who purchased large tracts of land there, from Lord Baltimore and others, in 1659, and subsequently, as shown by the county records. The family tradition is that William's father came to this country from Scotland. William died, leaving a will dated March 6, 1675, in which he mentions his wife Sarah and his children, John, Edward, Samuel, Philemon, Mary, Frances and William. He devises to them 1,300 acres of land, besides his home plantation, called Martingham, situated on the east shore of the Chesapeake, a short distance from the present city of Easton, which is still in the possession of his descendants. To John is given "200 acres of land on Chester River, being part of a tract of 800 acres called Price Hill," and Philemon is given 300 acres, "called Hambleton's Hermitage adjoining to Price Hill." No mention is made of children of any of these sons, except that the second William had three sons, namely: William, John and Philemon, and several daughters.

It is possible that our progenitor, James Hambleton, of Bucks County, was a son of John, Edward, Samuel or Philemon, sons of the first William, though no evidence has been discovered pointing that way. It is also possible that he was a descendant of one of the New England Hambletons above mentioned, though being a Quaker as he was, it is more likely that he or his father came over with the colony of early Quakers that settled Eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

The descendants of this Maryland family seem to have settled principally in the Southern States, though some of them have been found in the southern part of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, and further west. Among the sons of this family were William Hambleton, a captain in the Revolutionary war, though the name was spelled Hamilton in his commission; Samuel Hambleton, a purser in the navy, who was wounded by a cannon ball in the battle of Lake Erie, under Commodore Perry; and John N. Hambleton, paymaster in the U. S. Navy, who died in 1870. Also, some noted politicians in the South, and several very prominent business men, merchants and bankers in Baltimore.

William Hambleton was in the list of American prisoners at Forton Prison, England, 1777 to 1779.—N. E. Gen. Reg. Vol. 33.

In Smith's History of Delaware County, mention is made of Archibald Hambleton, and his father, living about the close of the Revolutionary war, near the present village of Coatesville, in Chester County, Pa.

In the Register's office of Philadelphia, Book G. 5, page 301, is recorded a deed, dated May 3, 1744, from David Fulton to William Hambleton, yeoman, for 143 acres of land in Cheltenham, Philadelphia County.

There are a number of Hambletons in and about St. Louis, Mo., descendants of Samuel and Mark Hambleton, brothers, who came to this country some forty or fifty years ago, from Staffordshire, England. Their father and grandfather were named Samuel, and the father removed to Staffordshire from Oldem, on the borders of Yorkshire, England, the early home of their family.

From a correspondent to the "RICHMOND DESPATCH":

"At the Bermuda Assizes, held Nov. 11 and 12, 1650—The Jury of our Sovereigne Lord, the Kinge, doe present George Washington, of Hambleton Tribe, Taylor, as a false Traytor against our most gracious and dread Soveraigne and his Liedge Lord, the Kinge, &c., havinge not the feare of God in his hearte, but seduced by the Instigation of the devil, maliciously and traytoriously on the 25th day of December, in the year of our Lord, 1648, at the house of Roger Axon, in the said Tribe, did then and there advisedly and directly speak and say in the hearing of said Roger Axon, these words, to-wit—'The King has sould his Subjects to Popery'; etc."

One cannot fail to notice the repetition of the names, William, Samuel, John, Sarah, and a few others, in all the different families of Hambletons that have been found or mentioned, whether in England, Boston, Pennsylvania or Maryland. This coincidence suggests a common origin of all the families.

EXPLANATIONS AND ABBREVIATIONS.

THE plan adopted in this record has been to number the HEADS of principal families and branches, in consecutive order, from 1 to 46; the name of the person so numbered being immediately preceded by the number in heavy figures, whenever such person is mentioned in the work; thus, 3 Stephen, 8 John, 19 James. The descendants in the female lines have been followed out no further than the children of the women who were born Hambletons, for the reason that to trace out the numerous descendants of those women would require considerable time and labor, and would very much delay the publication of this book, as the writer is still engaged in active business, and cannot at present give much further attention to the subject. But if other members of the family wish to pursue the subject further, the writer will gladly furnish them with all the additional information he possesses.

All the old family records were kept in the form usual with Friends, giving numbers instead of names, to months, and the days of the week, but for uniformity, dates, as of births, deaths, etc., are all herein given, in the customary form of the present day.

ABBREVIATIONS.

RECORD.

1. James Hambleton, of Solebury, Bucks county, Pa., who died in July, 1751, was a farmer, and owned a large tract of land, (one account says 600, another 800 acres), at what is now Center Hill, in the Township of Solebury, which has since been divided into a number of farms. On an old map, dated in 1706, as shown in Davis' History of Bucks County, this tract is marked as belonging to Stephen Beakes, and is without doubt the same land which was conveyed to James from Matthew Hughes and Elizabeth Hughes, executrix of the last will and testament of Stephen Beakes, dec'd, and John Beakes, heir of Stephen Beakes, by deed dated March 27th, 1721, and entered of record, May 9th, 1792.

He was a Quaker, and a member of Buckingham Meeting, in Bucks county, in 1720, as will appear from the following extracts from the records of that Monthly Meeting. [Buckingham Monthly Meeting was established by Falls or Fallsington Quarterly Meeting, on the 24th of the 9th mo., 1720, and so has no records previous to that date.]

"At our Monthly Meeting, the 7th day of ye 12 mo., 1720.

"At this meeting, David Wilson, of Chester meeting, made Complaint of James Hambleton by a letter, that he kept him to Long out his mony, and that he expects his mony with Speed, or his Liberty to get it otherways, therefore this meeting appoints John Dawson and Thomas Canby to Speak to James Hambleton againe In order that He may Satisfy David Wilson In his Just demands, or give his Reasons to next meeting."*

* In Smith's History of Delaware County, David Wilson's name appears in a list of the taxable residents and owners of real estate, of the Township of Chester, in the year 1722.

"At our Monthly Meeting, ye 7th day of ye 1st mo., 1721. According to appointment of last meeting, James Hambleton was Spoke to, and offers to Spare Cows, Horses, or any goods he hath, to satisfy David Wilson in his Just demands untill full, this meeting orders Thomas Canby to write to David Wilson, and Inform him of James' offering ye 7th day of ye."

"At our Monthly Meeting, ye 4th day of the 2d mo., 1721. Thomas Canby wrote to David Wilson abt. James Hambleton's Bussiness, according to the meeting's order, but as yet Received no answer."

"At our Monthly Meeting, ye 6th of ye 12th mo., 1721. Thomas Head and Samuel Pickering, having left their differences to this Meeting, who persuaded them to chouse friends to end It, and they chose Thos. Watson and John Dawson, with the assistance of Henry Paxson and James Hambleton, and Make report to next meeting."*

"1st of 1st mo., 1726.

"At this meeting Thomas Hartley and Elizabeth Paxson declared their Intentions of marriage with each other, it being the Second time, and those Friends that were appointed to Inspect into the Sd Thomas's clearness and Conversation Report they find nothing to obstruct their said Intentions, therefore the meeting Leaves them to their liberty to consummate their marriage according to The good order of Truth, and appoints James Hamleton and Thomas Canby, Junior, to See It decently accomplished, and make report thereof to next meeting."

James is frequently mentioned as a member of Committees in the subsequent minutes of these records, and the name is spelled sometimes with el, and once with il.

Col. Davis, in his History of Bucks County, in speaking of a mine on a certain farm about two and one-half miles south of New Hope, says that The Proprietaries sold the tract to William Coleman, and that he about 1750 sold it to James Hamilton and others.

The original will and inventory of personal property, of which the following are true copies, are still on file with the Register of Wills, for Bucks County.

100 acres, with the buildings, on which he lived and died; was an active, energetic man, knew how to make money and to save it; a Hicksite Friend, active in the Society, and was often clerk of the meetings, but withdrew because the Society was opposed to, or too passive in, the anti-slavery movement of the day, in which he was an active worker.
